

A connected place connects families

Support networks for families are important too.

Yarn

Show
your mob

Plan

Watch,
think, redo

Think and do

Do different ways

Draw it

Connect to land

*Always Be You has been developed with the application of, learnings from and respect for 8 ways Aboriginal Pedagogy ©Commonwealth of Australia. BY/4060 10/18

Many ways of knowing, being and doing

- Learning communities are good places to meet other families.
- An 'open door' policy means families can share this space in many ways.
- Many families have lots of connections in community already.
 - Families choose how they connect with others.

Learning map

- Families plan for 'get-together' times in their learning community.
- Review and map every family's connectedness with the learning community.

Many ways of doing

- Become involved in the learning community—you all belong!
 - Share your culture.
- Share and value what you have in common with others and also your differences.
- Grow and maintain this community—it's important to everyone.

Connecting to Community

- Have a yarn with other families.
- Share your skills and strengths.
 - Share resources.
- Connect with other services and professionals for your children, young people and your mob.

With delivery partners

Funded by

