

Relationships with families

it's our job

Collaborative partnerships with all families will lead to better outcomes.

Yarn

Show
your mob

Plan

Watch,
think, redo

Think
and do

Do different ways

Draw it

Connect to land

*Always Be You has been developed with the application of, learnings from and respect for 8 ways Aboriginal Pedagogy ©Commonwealth of Australia. BY/4080 10/18

Many ways of knowing, being and doing

- Relationships need to be built.
- Trust and respect are tools for building relationships.
- Everyone's identity is part of relationships.
- Cultural understanding supports building real strong relationships.

Learning map

- Map and plan for your own communication skill development.
- Reflect—when are you really listening?
- Plan for building relationships—time commitment is the key.
- Photos of relationships.

Many ways of doing

- Use each others names.
- Work with each family and share important information.
- Listen, think, respond—check you understand each other.
- Keep trying—practice makes perfect.

Connecting to Community

- What if a family doesn't want to connect?
- Connect in different way—show respect for families' choices.
- Honest, trusting relationships with families look different in each case.
- Learn from other community members.

With delivery partners

Funded by

